FRIENDS NOW SHOWING IN TIA LOWER LINK GALLERY

A variety of man's favorite buddies are pictured in the newest exhibit in the Lower Link Gallery through the end of August. Wild, as well as domestic, critters crowd the walls in a variety of media ranging from watercolor to colored pencil.

Sherry Bryant's not-to-be believed watercolors emit an otherworldly glow. Layering is the secret to her technique and she is obviously a master. It's easy to get lost in the eyes of that big horn sheep.

Color – lots of it – applied heavily with an oil stick creates a dynamic energy that enlivens the pictures of Terry Dietz's domestic friends.

Life and photography inform the work of Jill Dredge. Using colored pencils she conveys both depth and subtle transitions of color in her art.

Bernie Fierro's ranch is the inspiration for the material he exhibits here. He strives to communicate both similarity and differences; Working in both oils and acrylics, it's this sense of whimsy that makes his direct compositions of animals likeable.

Also on display, in the Upper Link Gallery, is Southwestern Impressions Part 2 from the Southern Arizona League of Fine Arts.

This exhibit is a part of Tucson International Airport's temporary art exhibit program. To learn more visit www.tucsonairport.org.
